DEMO CONCLAVE REACHES CLIMAX TODAY

Stove Plant Strike Settled Several Called Back Yesterday

The strike at the Murray Manufacturing Company has been agreed to settle according to Howard McNeely, president of local 1068 of the A.U.W.-C.I.O., which represents the employees of the stove plant. About sixty-six men were called back to work yesterday by the company, although the vacation period is now being held. This is not uncommon however as maintenance work has to be continued at all times.

Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

R. W. James of Hazel, route three, subscribed again yesterday for the 40th time. Thanks Mr. James. He's starting on his fiftieth year with the Ledger and Times.

In an editorial in the New York Times, the writer had this to say about Owen Johnson, a writer of the old school.

"He was whimsical without precocity and moral without saccharinity."

Today is the fourth day of the National Democratic Convention in Chicago. It is Pioneer Day in Utah, marking the arrival there of Brigham Young and his followers.

This date last year: Secretary of state Dean Acheson told an audience at Detroit's 250th anniversary celebration that American must not be fooled into dropping the guard because of Russia's "lullaby" of peace talk.

This date in history: Britain took Gibraltar from Spain, in 1704. Passengers crowding the side of the steamer "Eastland" at Chicago in 1915, caused the boat to capsize, with the loss of 832 lives, in 1915.

Our respect for the drivers of the big transport trucks increased this morning when we watched a driver unfamiliar with our alley make several unsuccessful attempts to negotiate it.

The old drivers hardly slow down when they start into it. They just wheel over to the other side of the street and bust right on in, clearing the sides by inches.

Larry Kerley is dead on his feet.

He got up the idea of showing his television on the lawn of the courthouse and it is keeping him up until 2:00 a.m. every night.

He can't shut the thing off until the last banner stops waving. He hasn't been to bed before 3:00 a.m. since the Democratic Convention started Monday.

After it is shut off, he had to lug the set back to the store.

Mrs. Ernest Bailey called to tell us how to keep the birds from bothering peaches, or from building nests on your porch.

Just hang up some black string and the birds will stay clear of the location. They think the black strings are snakes.

Charles B. Adams On Control Board

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Alcohol Beverage Control Board Chairman Guy C. Shearer today announced appointment of Charles B. Adams, Murray, former state highway patrolman, as a field representative of the Alcohol Beverage Control Board.

Adams served on the Highway Patrol from August 1936 to June 1940 when he quit to run for sheriff of Calloway County. He also has been a farmer and in the taxidermy and grocery business.

Convention Is Stirred By Barkley Talk

The 31st Democratic National Convention gave its all last night in a heartfelt hail-and-farewell to the squire of Paducah, Kentucky—74-year old Alben W. Barkley.

The Kentucky rail-splitter who rose to the vice presidency of his country bowed out of the convention two nights ago with a bitter statement blaming labor leaders for wrecking his chance to get his party's presidential nomination.

But he came back last night for a fighting speech in the golden-phased, wide-swinging oratorical style for which he is famous. For half a century he had served the Democratic party. Last night's triumphal comeback probably was his last appearance before a Democratic convention.

The delegates and packed ballrooms knew that, and they packed their feelings into a booming ovation.

To the strains of "My Old Kentucky Home" the Veep came into the hall.

The delegates stood on their chairs. They waved state standards, banners, placards, hands, handkerchiefs.

Barkley, natty in a double-breasted blue suit, shook hands with permanent chairman Sam Rayburn, and then walked to the podium.

He smiled, shook an affectionate clenched fist at the audience, and waved again.

A cloud of "Barkley for president" pennants appeared in front of the rostrum, and the vice president grinned and waved down at the beavers.

One delegate down at the foot of the rostrum held high a cardboard sign reading:

"Barkley is still the best."

Barkley's pretty wife, Jane, came in a few minutes before the vice president's scheduled speech and took a seat in a box just back of the platform. With her was her 17-year-old daughter by her first marriage, Jane Hadley.

She watched the ovation with a happy smile. She did not clap but sat quietly, her hands folded over the stems of roses she carried.

But daughter, Jane, clapped as enthusiastically as anyone in the audience.

It was a great moment—a moment long to be remembered for a man who had bowed out of the presidential picture Monday night.

To chants of "we want Barkley" the Veep pointed a finger at himself and opened his mouth in mock surprise as if he were saying: "Me?"

After the speech, Governor Elbert Carvel of Delaware walked forward and Barkley grasped his hand.

Then James Roosevelt of California, wearing a big orange Kentucky hat, did a somersault over the railing and stride forward for a grinning handshake. He got a big cheer.

This was perhaps the greatest outpouring of emotion by a Democratic convention since the night Continued On Page Two

ENERGETIC KEFAUVER MEETS DELEGATES AT THE TRAIN

ADDING AN UNUSUAL TOUCH in campaigning at the Democratic convention in Chicago, energetic Senator Estes Kefauver and wife Nancy are shown greeting Washington Delegation Chairman Harry Hinson (right) of Olympia as they met the entire state delegation at the train. An earlier count showed 7 1/2 of Washington's 22 votes favored the Tennesseean for the presidential nomination. (International)

Bombers Continue Work In Korea

Allied bombers have rained new blows on the Communists in Korea, but the ground fighting is at a virtual standstill.

United Nations fighter bombers struck deep in North Korea, knocking out three bridges and damaging three more. Air force spokesmen say the bridges were important links in the Red supply lines from Manchuria to the Communist frontlines. Other allied planes roamed near the front, shooting up enemy supply dumps, gun positions and troop bunkers.

The attacks came hard on the heels of yesterday's raids in which more than 1,000 allied planes pounded the Reds from land and sea. The attacks crippled Communist plants, supply dumps and barracks in widely scattered sections of North Korea.

Ground action has all but stopped. Tired allied and Communist troops each hold sections of a strategic height on the west-central front known as "Old Baldy." Several days of bloody fighting failed to give either side full control.

At Panmunjom, the truce negotiators have held their longest meeting in five days—26 minutes—thundershowers covered parts of the Rockies and along the south Atlantic coast.

Nomination Of Russell Will Lead Off Series Of Speeches

By United Press
The entire country is watching one man today as the Democratic National Convention pears its climax.

Adlai Stevenson has only a few hours left in which to say no for keeps to a possible nomination draft. He remains the top favorite to win the Democratic presidential prize.

The Illinois governor is continuing to pick up votes at a steady pace. His managers claim that he may be put over on the second ballot.

Stevenson himself is remaining in seclusion at a Chicago hideaway. His aides have denied reports that he promised to accept the nomination if it is offered to him.

There is talk today of drafting President Truman or Vice President Barkley—if a deadlock develops and Stevenson rejects a draft. But a White House official in Chicago predicts the chief executive will take firm steps to stop his name from being placed in nomination. The official says Mr. Truman plans to tell delegate William Green of Philadelphia that his name must not be offered at the convention. Green disclosed

Demo Platform Is Adopted

By United Press
The Democratic national convention adopted a party platform early today that included a compromise civil rights plank.

But a threatened southern floor fight over the civil rights issue failed to explode.

The platform was approved by a voice vote shortly before the sixth session of the convention resumed a few minutes after two a.m. (EDT). The delegates were called to order at noon (EDT) today when nominations for the presidency got underway.

There was some dissent against the platform from the south. After convention chairman Sam Rayburn slammed down his gavel and announced approval of the $500 word campaign document, Georgia asked that it be put on the record as against the platform.

Rayburn agreed and said he would comply with a similar request to vote against the platform but it did not get the chance to have its opposition recorded.

The platform called for an end to the senate filibuster, the one effective weapon the south holds to bar civil rights legislation. But it was included under a section concerning congressional procedure not in the civil rights plank itself.

The civil rights plank says the Democratic party favors legislation to secure equal opportunity for employment, the right to security of person, the right to equal and full participation in political affairs.

Other points in the platform include a pledge for continued prosperity, world peace with honor, balanced defense forces, high farm price support, and incitements that the Democrats aren't thinking of any tax reductions in the light of present world tension.

Other new officers, who have been named, include Alva Mallory of Fort Campbell, vice-commander of area "A"; A. B. Adams, of Fort Knox, vice commander of area "B"; and Dr. Daniel Bower, of Barbourville, vice-commander of area "C."

Amos Mosely, of London, has been elected chaplain and Dillard Williams, of Bowling Green, has been named sergeant-at-arms. The Kentucky Legionnaires also have elected 33 delegates to the American Legion's national convention at New York August 25th. This convention also named six delegates at-large and six alternates.

The group has selected Louisville as the site for its 1953 convention and has raised Legion dues from $1.00 to $1.25 a year.

Doctors Pleased With Response In Polio Experiment

By United Press
Doctors in Sioux City, Iowa, are happy over the response to their mass test for an experimental polio serum.

They call the response by some 16,000 children "overwhelming."

A new serum, gamma globulin, is on trial. It's injected into 50 percent of the children. The other half gets a harmless gelatin injection. In that way, doctors will be able to find out how effective gamma globulin is for fighting polio.

They chose Sioux City because of its polio epidemic. Sixteen persons have died since the polio epidemic broke out a few weeks ago.

Mrs. Charles Johnson: I think the parents make them afraid, by scaring them in a dark room, or something like that. I don't think they should ever start scaring them. They may not realize at the time that they are making them afraid of the dark, but they probably are.

Mrs. J. H. Roberts: I think it is best just not to scare them or say anything about being afraid of the dark, and they probably won't ever think about it.

Mrs. Sam Stephenson: I think you should always teach them not to be scared. I hate to see anyone scare children. I like to see them reason with them so they won't be afraid.

Mrs. Jack Trevathan: Be patient with them, and go with them and show them that the dark won't hurt them.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON July 24 (UP)—The nationwide steel strike has been settled. An agreement ending the 53-day-old walkout was reached this afternoon at a meeting of union and company representatives in the White House.

President Truman announced the settlement. He said the steel industry and the CIO United Steelworkers have reached agreement for settlement.

It is not unlikely that the Vice President's name will be presented to the convention. Despite the fact that his Kentucky Delegation considers itself bound by Barkley's request that his name not be placed in nomination.

Wetherby remarked that after that event it would be hard to imagine any delegate might nominate him. And, even if no delegate does, Kentucky or any other state would be free to cast its ballots for the Veep.

Choice Of Politicians

If the Democratic Party deliberately planned to lose the 1952 national election it could not more surely bring about defeat than to nominate Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois as the candidate for President.

It has been apparent for many months that he was the outstanding choice of the big city machines, that he was the choice of President Truman, in fact most professional politicians. But it has been just as apparent that he would be the last choice of the voters if they had anything to say about it.

He will meet the approval of some labor leaders, but if he is nominated the party that will be split wide open. The labor candidate, Vice-President Alben Barkley, withdrew Monday night after the left-wing element headed by Jack Kroll, CIO chieftain who has spent so much of his time in Moscow, turned thumbs-down on him because of his age.

If Stevenson is nominated labor will not be the only minority within the party that will be split. He will not suit Southern Democrats, nor will he appeal to conservatives who are familiar with his association with Alger Hiss.

Stevenson has said he didn't want the nomination and he cannot now even get the solid vote of his own state delegation. Senator Paul Douglas says he believed the Governor when he said he didn't want the nomination and he is openly supporting Senator Estes Kefauver.

Of course he doesn't have the nomination yet, but if he gets it the public will be pretty well convinced that such a thing as an independent Democratic Convention is a thing of the past and that the only way to get the Democratic nomination is through big-city machine support.

President Truman said state primaries are "eye-wash." If he succeeds in nominating himself, or his man Stevenson, his statement will be verified.

The American Olympic team has a good chance of over-taking the Russians today in the race for the unofficial team lead at Helsinki. The Russians hold a slight edge going into today's events—203 and one-half points to 202 for the Yanks. Harrison Dillard of Cleveland is America's best bet for a gold medal. Dillard tied the Olympic record for the 100 meter hurdles yesterday as he led the field toward the semi-finals and finals. Other Olympic titles to be decided today are the hammer throw, the five thousand meter race, the ladies' javelin and the ladies' 80 meter hurdle race.

The big leagues offer a heavy day schedule today as the first series of the current road trips end. In the National League, the Cincinnati Reds wind up their stay at Brooklyn with a double header while Chicago plays a single game.

Dodgers' Win

Streak Is Broken by Reds

REDS 6-DODGERS 1
Southpaw Harry Perkowski and the Cincinnati Reds snapped the Dodgers' winning streak with a 6-1 win at Brooklyn.

Perkowski is the first southpaw starter to beat the Dodgers this season. Nine others had failed. It is the second win for the Reds against 13 losses to the Dodgers this year.

Home runs did it for Cincinnati. The Reds scored one in the second on doubles by Ted Kluszewski and Joe Adcock. They added three more in the fourth on a double by Kluszewski and Adcock and Andy Seminick's homer. Bob Borkowski homered for the Reds in the fifth. Clyde King relieved loser Carl Erskine in the sixth and was touched for a run on singles by Adcock, Grady Hatton and Seminick.

Brooklyn scored twice in the sixth on singles by Al Walker and Dick Williams and a Billy Cox double. The Dodgers scored in the sixth when Carl Furillo doubled and Gil Hodges homered.

PHILS 4-PIRATES 1
The Phils climbed over the 500 percentage mark for the first time this season with a 4-1 win over Pittsburgh at Philadelphia.

Rookie Steve Ridzik and pitcher ace Robin Roberts held the Pirates to five hits with Ridzik who pitched a no-hitter in training last spring, getting the win. Del Ennis homered off loser Bob Friend with one man on. Singles by Eddie Walkus, Ridzik and Connie Ryan pushed over the winning run in the fourth inning. A walk and pinch hitter Harry Fisher's double in the seventh accounted for the Pirates' run.

CUBS 6-BRAVES 2
Lanky Bob Rush was at his best as the Chicago Cubs took a 6-2 win over the Braves at Boston.

Rush scattered five hits to notch his 10th win of the year. Tommy Brown homered in the third inning to put Rush in the lead and the big right-hander never was in danger. Al Rosen homered in the fourth on singles by Doc Faddy, Bill Serena, Rush and Brown. Hank Sauer doubled to score Eddie Miksis in the fifth and Serena got Sauer home with a single. Max Surkont is the loser.

Indians Win

Over Yanks By 7 To 3

Red Sox 10—White Sox 4
The Boston Red Sox exploded for seven runs in the ninth inning to beat the White Sox, 10-4, at Chicago.

Loser Joe Dobson, was sailing along with a 4-3 lead when the uprising started. He hadn't allowed a run since relieving starter Hal Brown up the first inning. Then Dick Gernert walked to open the ninth. Before it was over, Boston had wrapped it up on four singles, two walks, a hit batsman and Gernert's double. Chuck Stobbs relieved Dobson too late to shut off the rally.

George Kell homered for Boston's first three runs and Tom Wright hit one to get in two Chicago tallies in the third. Wright also drove in another White Sox run with a single in the fifth. Ralph Brinkner, who pitched from the fifth until he was taken for a pinch hitter in the ninth, is the winner.

Washington 5—Tigers 2
Washington broke up a lengthy pitchers' battle with three runs in the 10th inning to beat the Tigers, 5-2, at Detroit.

Frank Shea worked the first 14 innings for Washington but gave way to Sandy Consuegra in the 15th. Consuegra gets the win. Hal Newhouse matched Shea's performance for eight innings, but left for a pinch hitter when Detroit tied it at 2-2 in the ninth inning. Dick Littlefield came on and is tagged with the loss.

The Senators broke the deadlock in the 16th when Pete Runnels singled to score Eddie Yost with the winning run. Mickey Vernon's single scored two more for insurance. Cliff Mays of Detroit hit the only homer of the game.

INDIANS 7-YANKS 3
The Cleveland Indians got revenge for last night's double loss at the hands of New York by beating the visitors, 7-3, behind right-hander Bob Lemon.

Rookie Bill Glynn's double and Merrill Combs' single put Cleveland off in front in the second inning. The Yanks put over two runs in the fifth, but Al Rosen homered with one man on in the fifth to give Lemon the lead for good. Rookie Tom Gorman is the loser. Phil Rizzuto homered for New York.

A's 2—Braves 2
The Philadelphia A's handed the Browns their seventh straight loss with a 2-2 win at St. Louis.

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE BLAISE saw a big, jagged piece of sandstone a few feet away. He eyed it, then measured the distance. He picked up the rock, tested its weight and then slowly stood up. His eyes narrow as he measured the distance, his muscles tensed.

The rock hurtled like a projectile straight for the high-backed sombra. "At the same instant," Blaise jerked his Colt from the holster and lunged forward. The guard's head turned and, a split second later, he "klick" caught him squarely against the side of the head. He dropped and then Blaise was on him, the gun barrel thrusting with a solid sound against the man's skull. The guard didn't move.

Blaise crouched, listening, watching, and then he moved to work.
He took the man's Colt from the holster, dropped it and the rifle over the edge of the cliff. He ripped the man's shirt into long strips, quickly bound his hands and feet, made an effective gag that he tied securely around his head.

Then he heard hoof beats behind him and he swung around. He held his right hand near his gun as the sounds grew louder and the first horseman turned the corner into his sight. Thatcher and Hal led the pursuon, Rennie and Allen just behind, the rest following. Thatcher instantly spurred forward.

"You've found her?"

"The hideout—and the guards too. We just rode in."

"Thank God!" Thatcher breathed.
"We had a little trouble following the signs."

Blaise led the way across the meadow and into the narrow portal of the hideout. There was no challenge. They came out into the meadow just at dusk. Blaise reined in, spoke to Thatcher.

"We must take the only way out."
Rennie's somewhere up ahead in one of those cabins. I'd better take a look-see, so we'll waste no time getting to her."

"I'll go with you," Hal offered.
Blaise "klick" his head.

"You take charge here. If anything happens, you'll know what to do. I won't be long." He rode off into the gathering dusk. A hundred yards from the nearest cabin, Blaise dismounted and, ground-tied the horse. He pained his gun into his hand and crept forward.

Blaise moved behind the trees and he could hear loud talk. Someone strummed a guitar and he heard a burst of strident laughter. He reached the corner of the first

Fescue Saves Day In Dry Caldwell

The fescue seed crop is a bright spot in a county hard hit by drought, says R. A. Mabry, Caldwell county agent, with the University of Kentucky. The majority of farmers reported the best seed yield in several years, with dry weather providing excellent harvest conditions. It is estimated the county crop will total 500,000 pounds, in contrast to 157,000 lbs. two years ago.

W. J. McConnell of Otter Pond produced about 490 pounds to the acre of reclaimed seed in 60 acres, while Luther Heyer, Jr., of the Friendship community sold 21,000 pounds from 100 acres at the rate of 40 cents for certified seed and 35 cents for uncertified.

Increase Is Asked By Telephone Co.

The Southern Bell Telephone Company today filed an application with the Kentucky Public Service Commission asking increased rates to offset higher wages costs incurred recently and other advanced costs not yet recovered.

Filing of the petition had been expected in view of the fact that a general wage increase for Southern Bell employees was approved by the Wage Stabilization Board this week. Officials indicated at the time the contract was signed that the added costs of doing business, "piled on" top of previous cost increases not fully covered by present rates, would necessitate revised rates.

The present telephone rates in Kentucky were established on December 31, 1951, when the Public Service Commission authorized rate increases amounting to considerably less than Southern Bell's request. The Company expressed disappointment but placed the new schedule in effect as ordered by the Commission.

"Aside from the fact that we did not obtain authority for the rate increases requested and badly needed at that time," Kentucky Manager C. Hunter Green said, "the added wage costs now place an additional squeeze on our financial operations and give us no alternative, in the interest of the service the state needs."

The state manager pointed out that the increased wage costs, together with the previously incurred cost increases which the Company has not recovered, will serve to reduce earnings in Kentucky to a level that is inadequate for the needs of the business. To provide good, dependable and expanding service such as the people of Kentucky want, our earnings must be adequate to attract large sums of additional capital," he declared. "They are not adequate now and are declining due to the wage cost increases."

Additional annual gross revenue requested in the petition is $2,582,118.

Jet Planes, Space Dolls And Ships Shown In The Toy Preview For Christmas 1952

By Gay Pauley (UP)
Junior's off on a real inter-planetary bingle this year. Toys for Christmas 1952 are so out of this world—literally—that it makes a parent wonder what ever became of the slingshot and BB gun.

Just listen to the space toys included in the Christmas 1952 collection previewed in New York by the toy guidance council.

There's a rocket gun which shoots rubber darts—a flying saucer gun which projects a spinning top as far as 100 feet into the air—A Flash Gordon space suit which comes complete with a radio antenna hat and magic glasses with one-way lens—and inter-planetary space phones. These are supposed to enable the kiddies to chat at distances up to half a mile.

There's a jet plane which fires six streams of water simultaneously out of its rocket guns—a three-way light-ray gun—a space helmet with a rear propeller—a 500-shot space water pistol—a space port with rocket launcher—rocket ships—space cadet goggles and a compass.

High Rocket Ship
As if these weren't enough to drive a parent to distraction, there also will be a special seven foot high rocket ship which can be constructed from Erector set parts—also an atomic energy kit with a real geiger counter. This one is a hold-over from last year's experimental crop of science-fiction toys.

Merlin Freud, council president, says the trend toward space toys can be credited to television drama, recent motion pictures, and news reports about rockets to the moon and flying saucers.

The toy council exhibit of more than 500 playthings recommended for children includes dolls about as near real-life as you can get without creating a Frankenstein.

Walking dolls were first introduced last year. But Freud says the children liked them so much they're back in greater number. Most of them "walk" without mechanical winding—with just a little help from the small girl. Most also have hair which can be washed, combed and waved.

Doll Space Fever
The pony-tail hair-doll has inspired a series of three stuffed dolls in graduated sizes and named because of their coiffures. Dolls too, have caught the space fever. One collection has them dressed as television's Tom Corbett and "Dr. Dale."

Western toys, always popular, show up this year in the form of hand-tooled holster sets, a bow that fires a re-coiling rubber "arrow" and a frontier rifle which shoots safety caps.

This year's Santas also will stuff their packs with new-craft playthings. These include a plastic kit for making decorative items from liquid plastic; a kit for making raffia-covered glasses and dishes; a pearl kit for making jewelry; sea shells from Honolulu, also for making jewelry; and an

Wading Can Be Dangerous

In an effort to drastically reduce the number of water fatalities as a result of persons wading in unfamiliar waters and in unsuitable places, the Corps of Engineers has launched a nationwide program to publicize the hazards involved in this type of usage of Corps of Engineers' reservoirs.

A large portion of the Corps of Engineers' projects are constructed in deep valleys and after construction of the reservoirs the floodplain is usually made up of floodplain banks in natural position. The District Engineer advised that most of the wading deaths occurred in these areas.

Many areas where old roadways had led into the water have been utilized as the most frequent wading areas. The Corps of Engineers has also present at these locations in view of the fact that the old roads are frequently constructed on fills and a false step to the right or left of the roadway may cause a fall.

As an aid in presenting this message to the public, signs will be prepared by the Nashville District Corps of Engineers, warning of the dangers involved in wading in these unsuitable areas. These signs will be placed in many of the public use areas but the Engineers issued this warning to the public "Don't Wade in the Unsupervised Areas." The Engineers emphasize that whether signs are present or not, there are but few areas in the Cumberland River Reservoirs suitable for wading purposes. Persons who cannot swim should not wade in these areas.

Family Food Needs Increase As Child Grows And Develops

By United Press
As your children grow, so does your grocery bill. Home economists at the University of Nebraska say that food needs increase as children grow and develop. Their hunger reaches its peak in the teens. Recent estimates by the bureau of human nutrition and home economist show that the cost of feeding a family of four with two teen-age boys is around a third more than that for a family with children under six.

The university explains teen-aged boys need more food than adults because they generally are more active.

Hollywood Turning Into Family Town

By United Press
Hollywood is turning into a family town. The film stars are helping their kid brothers and sisters cash the movies.

Irish-born Maureen O'Hara got her two brothers roles in one of her pictures when it went on location to her home country. The handsome brothers were so good they have been imported to Hollywood.

Jane Russell's youngest brother, Wally, has snared the role of a football player in a new Dean Martin-Jerry Lewis comedy, June Haver has drafted her sister, Dorothy, as she stands in.

The fact that she's Pier Angeli's twin sister didn't stop Mercedes Pavan from a movie career. The two, fortunately for their careers, are not identical twins.

Debra Paget's sister, Sheila, was tested by one studio years ago but didn't win a contract. Later, Debra did. Now their sister, Leslie Gae, is up for a job at the same film factory.

Designer Dreams Up Skirt That Will Not Sag At Back

By United Press
A New York dress designer claims she's whipped the problem of the skirt which sags at the back.

The skirt, dreamed up by designer Mae Louise Myers, is a complicated affair involving an inner and outer layer. If it works, as the designer, known professionally as Madame Brune claims, a woman can sit around a bridge table as long as she chooses and have no fear her skirt will be bulging when she arises. The government has issued a patent for the Brune idea.

Here's the way the skirt works. There is an outer skirt which has a loose panel held across the back by one or more buttons. When a woman prepares to sit down, she unbuttons the panel and hinges it over to her side.

Then she sits on the inter skirt, which absorbs the sag. Getting up, she buttons the panel and the skirt stays in a straight line.
